Hangsterfer's Laboratories, Inc. Receives Top Industry Award

Mantua, NJ – The Industrial Supply Association (ISA) awarded Hangsterfer's Laboratories and their distributor Major Tool Company of Knoxville, TN the prestigious American Eagle Value-Added Partner Award during the Industrial Supply Conference & Trade Fair in Las Vegas, Nevada on May 21, 2007. The award recognizes the efforts of a manufacturer and distributor working together to add value to their end-user.

Hangsterfer's Laboratories, Inc. and Major Tool Company were recognized for their program at Denso Manufacturing in Athens, TN documenting a substantial cost savings in the use of straight oils, increased productivity and outstanding environmental accomplishments. Denso Manufacturing was able to improve tool life and dramatically reduce hazardous waste by replacing a cleaning solvent and cutting oil with more environmentally friendly products. The cleaner replaced a hazardous chemical that generated over 14,000 lbs. of hazardous waste per year and also improved the work environment for their employees.

"To be recognized by ISA is a great honor to Hangsterfer's Laboratories," says Leslie Jones, President of Hangsterfer's Laboratories. "Since our inception we have always had a commitment to improving the environment. To be able to demonstrate a case study like we had at Denso, epitomizes what Hangsterfer's is all about; bringing value added solutions to the market."

"It's an honor to be recognized by our peers with this award, " said Hangsterfer's Director of Sales, Andrew Dubler. "This recognition will convince other people of the kind of important, positive contributions that companies in the industrial distribution channel make not only in the U.S. economy but the global economy as well,"
